WEDNESDAY JUNE 14, 1911

It is astonishing how soon the whole conscience begins to unravel, if a single stitch drops; one little sin indulged in makes a hole you could put your head through. —Charles Buxton.

Perhaps it will appear on more complete information that Senator La Follette is opposed to one-sided reciprocity.

Now they are calling it the Irwin site. Apparently the civic center game has played out and the child has come to be known by its real name.

Since the Governor is on such good terms with the Delegate who doesn't write and ask what it's all about? That ought to settle all difficulties.

There's no doubt that bigger steamers must be built to accommodate the crowds coming to Honolulu. It's only a question of who will build them.

Send the committee of sugar investigators to Hawaii. This Territory and its industries have been in the business of educating Congressmen and are quite willing to continue the good work for another period of years.

This is the day when the Supervisors will pass the Honolulu building ordinance by a unanimous vote. Only the mayor can stand in the way of speedily taking one of the advance steps from Old Honolulu to New Honolulu.

Pass the building ordinance. Let one more progressive measure be put down to the credit of the local government as early as possible. And if anyone wants to make a party matter of standing in the way of Honolulu's progress, let him do it.

Too many people have yet to realize that the growth of Honolulu is guaranteed by no less a stable factor than the United States Government. And they are the ones who don't just like the idea of so many American citizens being added to the population of the town.

It is obvious that some people have decided that the public schools should be conducted by certain teachers as against the principal. Should this idea prevail, the Public Instruction Department might as well quit business as a medium of education and discipline.

"Civic Welfare Above Private Gain." —Advertiser headline.

Private gain is just the point involved in the game of the Site Shifters. Private gain is what inspires the site shifting effort to defeat the Government in securing property that is needed for civic welfare.

Treasurer Conkling says that the outlook seems favorable for Hawaii's bonds. Before feeling certain about it, the people would like an opinion from their special attorney, so that they may be certain of getting their money's worth at one thousand dollars a month and expenses.

The present Board of Supervisors would make their names famous and do the city a great good, if they will adopt a method of constructing first class permanent roads. Just as many men can be employed in building permanent streets as in putting down a pavement that goes to pieces in six months or a year.

Tourists are beginning to take the steamers for Honolulu. That means business. It means progress for Honolulu. All of which will be knocked into a cocked hat if the sanitary condition of the town is not steadily and radically improved. Mosquitoes and threats of cholera won't mix with tourists. So you must help keep the town clean if you would help yourself in a business way.

Magazine advertisements remind us that the publishers of Woodrow Wilson's books are making the most of the sunshine.

Put citizen labor in the skilled positions of Hawaii's industry and the free sugar argument will have its last prop kicked from under.

Why don't they trot out the man in training for the Governorship. The people would like to know which branch of the family he belongs to.

Get in the habit of thinking of Honolulu as a town due to grow more rapidly in the next five years than any other American city this side of the Rocky Mountains. Then act accordingly, and you can't lose.

"Woodrow Wilson, the college professor who woke up." This is the title given New Jersey's man of the hour by The National Post and it comes closer to correctly describing Woodrow Wilson up to date than anything that has been published. The National Post is the new fortnightly magazine recently offered the public by the men who made Success famous. This publication keeps its patrons in touch with what is going on throughout the world, and spices its general information with good fiction and vigorous comment on the affairs of our own country. Judged by its first issues, The National Post is Progressive all through, interesting and instructive.

All those who have read Homer Lea's "Valor of Ignorance" should secure the recent issue of the Outlook and read the article entitled "The Ignorance of Valor." The spirit of the criticism is epitomized in the following sentence, after a summing up of what Lea says Japan could do to us in a twinkling. "But the notion that a nation which in its infancy, with a population of three or four millions, could not be held in subjection by Great Britain, could in its manhood, be brought into subjection by Japan, is a nightmare brought on by an undigested mass of facts, figures and unscholarly theories." We believe this is very true. But we are mighty glad that Homer Lea has written as he has, to stir up some of the old dry bones.

DEFEATING THE PEOPLE.

Of course, if there are enough people in Honolulu of the "public-be-damned" style to block the plain desire of the majority to have what is offered in the federal building matter in the way of civic beauty, the blocking can probably be kept up until such time as the appropriation is canceled and there will be no building at all.—Advertiser.

Why of course. And there is not the slightest doubt as to the identity of the "public-be-damned" variety and of those who are blockading the efforts of Congress and the United States Government generally to give this city a Federal building in short order.

The will of the majority has been many times expressed in favor of the Mahuka site. Congress enlarged the site to suit the demands of the architects who are quoted by the Advertiser as saying that the planning of this building at the western gateway "is as important as anything we will ever do."

Now comes the "public-be-damned" blockaders in the person and character of the ill-humored birds in the "Tiger" fooler tree.

Then, the selfish interests involved in the condemnation proceedings. Interests fighting on points for technical delay rather than for a speedy conclusion of the court procedure to secure a fair valuation of the property

If the Advertiser has any influence with itself and other recognized blockaders, it should use it so that the progress of the city of Honolulu shall not be further and unnecessarily delayed by a contest that is being made to defeat the wish of the people here and the people as represented in Congress for a Federal building on the Mahuka site.

FLAG DAY.

The American flag is one hundred and thirty-four years old today and is still growing. The fact that the designers of the flag arranged to have a stripe and a star added for every new state shows that they had no conception of what was before their country.

In 1818, when the flag had eighteen stars and eighteen stripes it was seen that the plan must be changed, so the stripes were reduced to thirteen, representing the original colonies, and the stars have ever since been increasing. Now the arrangement of the stars, when another has to be added, is becoming somewhat of a problem. This is left to the determination of the Secretary of War.

There are six rows of stars in the present flag, four of them containing eight each, and two seven each, which include Oklahoma. But Arizona and New Mexico are making strenuous bids for a place in the blue field and Secretary Stimson will have to put on his thinking cap to place the two new stars in the constellation. At the same time he may as well arrange for a reserved seat for Hawaii's distinguishing mark of the honor of statehood.

CIVIC FED.

The Civic Federation will hold a meeting at three o'clock this afternoon in the rooms of the Public Service Association, on King street, to discuss participating in "Clean-Up Day," June 24. The Federation will probably name delegates to represent the body on the various committees.

WORK-A-DAY RELIGION

They say that women predominate in the churches; perhaps there is a good reason for it. Goethe says "The woman-soul leadeth us upward and on," while Balzac and Dante both say in different words, that our salvation is in the hands of the women.

An American writer has truthfully remarked that "The Soul in its perception of truth is feminine."

This being so, and with woman's influence predominant in the home, it is rather to the discredit of men that they are largely represented in the churches by their wives and daughters.

Fowler's book on "The Design of Christianity," was assailed by John Bunyan with a ferocity which nothing can justify, but which the birth and breeding of the honest thinker in some degree excuse.—T. B. Macau.

In giving a list of American patriots who were churchmen, the "Hawaiian Church Chronicle" says:

"Benjamin Franklin, who did such great service in France, was a vestryman of this church—he was never a member of Christ church, Philadelphia."

But Franklin did not accept the a communicant of any orthodox church. He was while in England a communicant of Essex Unitarian Chapel, London, under the ministrations of Rev. Thos. Belsham, and many years after he wrote his own creed:

"I believe in ONE GOD, the creator of the Universe; that he governs it by his providence; that he ought to be worshipped; that the most acceptable service we render to him is doing good to his other children; that the soul of man is immortal, and will be treated with justice in another life respecting its conduct in this.

These are the fundamental points of all sound religion. As to Jesus of Nazareth, I think the system of morals and his religion as He left them to us the best the world ever saw, or is likely to see; but I apprehend it has received various corrupting changes, and I have my doubts as to its divinity."

The following Unitarians were burned for their religious beliefs:—Dr. Geo. von Pariss, Smithfield, London, 1551; Patrick Painingham, Uxbridge, 1555; Matthew Hamont, Norwich, 1572; John Lowes, Norwich, 1587; Peter Cole, Norwich, 1589; Francis Kett Norwich, 1589; B. Legate, Smithfield, 1612; Edward Wightman, Litchfield 1612; John Biddle, died in prison, 1662.

There has been a wonderful advance in tolerance since that day and the meeting of the Federation of Churches in New York, when Drs. Edward Everett Hale, Hon. John D. Long and Dr. Eliot were excluded. But the spirit of Jesus which Unitarians are here to diffuse to the extent of their loyalty to His service, has not permeated all the religious systems yet.
